One of the most surprising things about crocodiles is their ability to brush their hair. That's right, crocodiles have hair! It is very fine, almost invisible hair, but it is all over their bodies.

Crocodiles use their hair to brush away dirt and parasites. They also use it to sense their surroundings. The hair on their heads is particularly sensitive, and it can detect even the slightest changes in water pressure.

Another amazing ability of crocodiles is their ability to change color. Crocodiles can change their color to match their surroundings, which helps them to camouflage themselves from predators and prey.

Crocodiles also have a very strong sense of smell. They can smell prey from miles away, and they can even track down prey that is hiding underwater.

Crocodiles are also very intelligent animals. They have been known to solve problems and to learn from their experiences.

The book "Can Crocodile Brush His Hair?" explores the unknown and amazing abilities of ordinary crocodiles. The book is full of fascinating facts and stories about crocodiles, and it is sure to captivate readers of all ages.
