A Poetic Ode to the Marvels of Science

In the title story, "Dear Science," King pens a poignant letter to science itself, expressing both awe and trepidation at its unyielding pursuit of knowledge and its potential to shape our destinies.

"Dear Science," King writes, "You have given us so much, and yet we fear you. We marvel at the power you have bestowed upon us, and yet we cringe at the thought of where your relentless quest for truth may ultimately lead us."

Exploring the Boundaries of Imagination and Reality

"Dear Science and Other Stories Errantries" transports you to worlds where the boundaries between the possible and the impossible blur, where the ordinary collides with the extraordinary, and where the very fabric of reality seems to shimmer and shift.

In "The Manbot," King introduces us to a man who dreams of becoming a machine, only to discover that his aspirations come at a profound cost. In "The Back of the Turtle," a group of scientists embarked on a perilous expedition into the depths of the ocean to uncover the secrets of a legendary creature.
