DIVERSITY STATEMENT

If you asked me six years ago, I wouldn't have known what graduate school was, nor what it was designed to do. In fact, I wasn't even sure I wanted to go to college. In my small agricultural town with a population of just over 5,000 people, it was the type of place where family-owned farms and tiny storefronts shaped and defined the community. These types of jobs were passed down throughout the generations, and everyone knew everyone else. My original goal was to take over my parents' farm as soon as I was able to, and I expected to do so as soon as I got my high school diploma. It took one piece of legislation to change all that, and luck with me a passion for law and policy.

The summer before I was expected to graduate, a piece of legislation was passed that required chicken coops to be constructed in a certain shape fitting different dimensions than what we, and everyone else in the town, possessed. Lawmakers cited the importance of animal welfare in creating the new legislation, but upon performing a few simple calculations, we discovered that the legislation actually decreased each chicken's living space by over 27%. The legislation was a result of lobbying by various chicken suppliers who bought their livestock from farms like ours, who hoped to decrease supply and thus raise prices by forcing farmers to cull their stock. The unfairness of the entire process made me determined to study how these policies are made, and do my part to make a change.

My goal is to represent the interests of my community in the congresses and courts of the country, to ensure that laws are working for the interests of the people and not for the interests of the corporations. In these times, agriculture is already a difficult field to make a living in, and small farming communities like the one I call home are some of the most vulnerable to changes in legislation simply because there is little education and representation on the matter. I hope to attend graduate school in the field of political science, because I believe that it will build upon my existing knowledge of the political process and legislation, enabling me to pursue my career and personal goals of obtaining justice for my community now and in the future.
