Serena and Venus began playing tennis at a young age, and they quickly showed a natural talent for the game. However, they also faced racism and discrimination from other players and fans.

Despite the challenges she faced, Serena never gave up on her dream of becoming a professional tennis player. She worked hard, and she eventually earned a scholarship to attend the University of California, Los Angeles. Serena turned professional in 1995, and she quickly rose to the top of the rankings. She won her first Grand Slam singles title at the 1999 US Open, and she has been dominating the sport ever since.
